THE SABBATH SCHOOL VISITOR

THE Visitor is Edited by the Rev. Asa Bullard, Secretary Mass. S. S. Society and published at Boston. Monthly; each number containing 24 pages with a piece of Music, prepared for the work by Lowell Mason, Prof of the Boston Academy of Music, and at least one engraving; and it comes at 50 cents a year in advance. The Society have found it necessary, in order to prevent losses, to adopt this rule, not to send the Visitor to any one, except Agents who become responsible, till the subscription is received.

This work is published for the purpose of aiding parents and teachers in the religious instruction of the young, and of interesting children and youth and also adults, in the study of the Bible.

The object of this article is to request Ministers, Superintendents, and other friends of Sabbath Schools, to lend their influence in extending the circulation of this little work in their respective Societies, Schools and families. The SEVENTH volume commences with January next.

The subscriber is Agent for the Work and will receive subscriptions and deliver the numbers at BANGOR free of any expense of freightage, to the subscribers.

A little effort would very much increase the circulation of the Visitor and it is believed, greatly aid those who are laboring for the welfare of the young. Will not Superintendents, especially, use their influence the present month to introduce this periodical into their respective schools?

The subscriber is also Agent for all the Publications of the Mass. S. S. Society, and they can be had at No. 6, Smith's Block, Bangor, at the Society's prices. E. F. DUREN. 1m D18

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10, 18..

THE FARCE OF SEVEN WEEKS.

Early in the present session of Congress, C. C. Cambreleng offered to the House of Representatives, (with an expression of holy horror at the enormity of Samuel Swartwout's recent defalcations,) a Resolution proposing an investigation into that stupendous fraud, by a Select Committee of that body.

The proposition was sustained by the friends of the Administration, following the lead of Cambreleng, as one justly due to the country, the administration, the party, the party, the every thing, and the every body.

The proposition was sustained by the opposition [illegible] and sincerely; and they, wishing to have a committee that would act in good faith, and not be under the beck and guidance of the Executive, will, proposed that this committee should be chosen "by ballot" and not by appointed by the Speaker.

This proposition was opposed very warmly by the plausible officers of the investigation. It would be "packing" the Committee to which process, as such, they did not object, provided the "packing" could be done by their Speaker, and not by the majority of the House, through the ballot box.

After some weeks delay and debate, Mr. Cambreleng showed how very anxious he really was for the investigation to go forward which he had come forward and proposed so magnanimously, by modifying his motion so as to provide that the committee be chosen viva voce. The Chair had decided that if this amendment were embodied in the bill, inasmuch as it went to change a rule of the House, it would require a vote of two thirds to pass the resolution. As soon as this decision was announced, and it was seen that a large majority of the House were determined that Mr. Polk should not have the "stocking of the pack," Cambreleng so altered his resolution as to include the viva voce principle.

This trick was very shallow. Here, thought Cam, these opposition people pretend to desire investigation. If we incorporate this viva voce provision in our resolution, they will not vote for it, so altered, and then what a hue and cry we can raise against them, for not going for investigation after all!

Mr. Marvin of New York exposed the shallowness of this trick by a single motion: to strike out the viva voce, and to insert "by ballot" and in that shape the resolution was finally adopted, "in spite of lamentations here or elsewhere."

But a curious feature of the whole affair is found in the yeas and nays, on this motion to substitute the ballot, the Constitutional, time honored, time-sanctioned ballot for the viva voce which required two thirds of the House to pass it. The vote stands:

For the Ballot 113.

For Viva Voce 105.

The vote of the Maine delegation was as follows

For the Ballot Evans, Noyes, Robinson, and Smith.

For Viva Voce Anderson, Davee, and Parris.

One vacancy.

So the ballot was ordered, by a majority of the House, after seven weeks delay and debate.

The loco focos ran a ticket made up of six Administration men, one States Rights men, one Conservative and one Whig.

The opposition ran a ticket, made up of four Whigs, two Conservatives, and two Administration men, and a States Rights man.

On the first ballot, Messrs. Wise, Harlan, Dawson, Curtis, Smith, and Elmore, were elected.

On the second ballot, Messrs. Cushman, Hubley and Hopkins were elected.

After taking a night to think it over, a new game was agreed on; and Messrs. Cushman, Elmore, and Hubley, begged to excuse themselves from serving, Petriken, Boon, and such people declaring on the floor that no good democrat could serve on such a Committee thus raised, and thus "packed."

Will the reader be so good as to bear in mind what the complexion of this Committee would have been, had the Speaker appointed it, or had the ticket run by the Administration prevailed?

Three more were balloted for, and the first ballot resulted in no choice.

On the second, Messrs. Martin, Tayler, and Wagener were chosen all Administration men.

Mr. Wise, the Committee being thus filled, [illegible] have the rules suspended, (requiring a vote of two-thirds) to allow him to submit a motion without which the Committee could not proceed in its duty: to have power to appoint a clerk, and printer, and to sit daily.

This proposition was cried down by the administration party and [illegible] the kind of Cambreleng & Co. who had [illegible] for Investigation!!

Mr. [illegible], one of the rankest administration men, from New York, who had been chosen on this Committee, then arose, and said he must decline serving, [illegible] he would prefer to give [illegible] (this ballot.) And the hour being [illegible], the adjourned.

The [illegible] of this ballot is simply this: the [illegible] to have a fair [illegible] they intended to have the Speaker pick a Committee, that [illegible] an determined to oppose this Committee, they resolved to thwart the will of the majority, (these ineffable democrats!) by bringing up their men to "toe the mark", and [illegible] serving [illegible] committee, at all. But, during the proceeding a change came over the spirit of their dream, and they [illegible] secondly, that, if they can get in the three men of their party, whom they may please to select, they will go for the ballot. And who are these three?

Frank Thomas of Maryland!

Thomas L. Hamer of Ohio!!

Hopkins L. Turney of Tennessee!!!

"Give us", say they, "our strong men!" Alas! alas! to what slights and insults do these "democrats" tamely submit, from these "aristocrats," their leaders! "Our strong men!" What say Messrs. Cushman, Tayler, Wagner, Elmore, Potter, Martin, &c. to this distinction? But this is their affair.

And here rested this matter, at the adjournment, last night. I have recapitulated the facts in the case, in this concise form, so that the reader may have it, all at a glance; and now we will see "what another day may bring forth."

Truly yours, &c.

FROM WASHINGTON.

The letter of our Washington correspondent giving the account of Friday's proceedings failed to reach us to day. The day was occupied in discussing the applications of Messrs. Taylor, Martin and Wagener to be excused from serving on the Swartwout committee. Messrs Tayler and Martin were excused, and Messrs Foster and Owens were appointed to fill the vacancies. The House refused to excuse Mr. Wagener by a vote of 105 to 102.

Before the adjournment Mr. Wise introduced a resolution authorizing the committee to appoint a clerk and printer, also giving the members of the committee leave to absent themselves from the house during its sittings, and if necessary to proceed to New York to prosecute the investigation.

☞ The editor of the Democrat charges us with treating him unfairly, in stating that he complained because the proceedings of the City Council were not published, when it was a correspondent who made the charge. The editor adopted the communication by admitting it to his columns without comment, when he must have known that its statements had a tendency to give to his readers an erroneous impression in regard to the proceedings of the Council. The editor of the Democrat has been a citizen long enough to know that the record of the doings of the city is open to the examination of all. What difference does it make whether a misrepresentation is published in the shape of a communication or editorial? It will have the same tendency. And the editor admitting a communication knowing it to be a misrepresentation, without comment, is equally responsible for it as though it had been [illegible]. Take away this responsibility, and a reckless editor might place all his thoughts in the shape of communications, and when brought to an account for the false accusations they might contain, he would say as the Democrat editor now does, "Oh, we are not responsible it was a communication." The editor of the Democrat should not complain of unfair treatment until he studies a little more fairness towards opponents.

☞ We understand that Professor Pond, from a committee appointed for that purpose, will present a report at the Vestry of the Rev. Mr. Pomroy's Church, this evening, at 7 o'clock, on the duties of Magistrates in relation to the License Laws. This report was intended for last Thursday evening, but owing to some misapprehension, was not presented. The citizens generally are invited to be present.

DEFINITION OF A CONJUNCTION. Examination in Grammar at a Fashionable Seminary for young Ladies. Pray Miss, what part of speech is the parson of the parish?

I suppose he is a conjunction, Madame. A conjunction, Miss? What kind of a conjunction?

A copulate conjunction, Madam.

Why a copulative conjunction?

Because he connects "like cases, and like modes and tenses."

How does he connect "like cases?"

He unites parties, both of whom are in love: which I take to be, that both are in the same case.

Very well. How does he connect "like moods?"

The parties to be united are, I suppose, both in a mood to be married, and are thus in "like moods."

But how does he connect "like tenses?"

If both are desirous, at the time of the ceremony of being immediately united, as I presume is always the case, both are, at that time in the present tense, and thus he 'connects like tenses'.

Does such a copulative conjunction connect like genders?

No Madam; that is not according to the rule of Cupid's grammar. His rule is, that "copulative conjunctions connect unlike genders, or rather contrary genders;" that is, masculine and feminine, never neuter.

Very well indeed, Miss; your examination does you much credit; you may pass. You are entitled to the degree of Bachelaress of Arts. You shall have a husband when you are married.

Thank you Madam Boston Post.

Sleep. What a beautiful thing is sleep! There is no sorrow so deep, no grief so all enduring, to which "Nature's soft nurse" cannot bring some alleviation! It is the veritable Lethean Cup of the fabulist, above all, its immediate and all prize!

THE COMMISSIONERS' REPORT ON THE NORTHERN BOUNDARY.

To Edward Kavanagh, Esq.

Governor of the State of Maine.

The Commissioners appointed and commissioned on the 3d day of Sept. last, under the resolve of the Legislature approved Mar. 3, 1838, to examine, run and locate the North Eastern Boundary of the State, met at the Bangor House in Bangor, on the 13th day of said Sept. for the purpose of organizing and conferring with the Governor and with each other upon the best and most practicable mode of accomplishing the objects of said resolve, and fulfilling the duties required of them by their appointment; and after a full and deliberate examination of the various considerations which might properly bear upon the question, they were led to concur in the opinion that the only measure that could be attempted the present season, with any reasonable prospect of success, was an examination and exploration of the region round about the North west angle of Nova Scotia, and a review of such part of the line of exploration run by the Surveyors under the treaty of Ghent, in 1817 and 18, as they might find time to examine as a preliminary measure to the commencement of the running and locating a meridian line from the monument.

One consideration, among others, which had great weight in leading to this course, was the fact, that the officers, agents and diplomatists of the British Government had so long and so earnestly and pertinaciously asserted and maintained that no highlands could be found dividing the waters running into the River St. Lawrence from those which fall into the Atlantic Ocean, and answering in character and location to the Highlands described and undertaken to be established as the boundary in the definitive treaty of peace that not merely high officers of Government, but many of our own people were inclined to give credit to the assertions. It is true that a little reflection upon the subject might have seemed sufficient to convince any man of common sense, unless the laws of nature and gravitation were reversed, that these representations were entirely unfounded in truth for unless water in that region did not run down hill or that it ran indiscriminately from the River St. Lawrence to the Atlantic Ocean, and from the Atlantic Ocean to the St. Lawrence, or unless the whole boundary line is in the bed of a Lake or in an interminable morass, it must necessarily and inevitably follow that the lands which divide and separate these waters and turn them on their course in opposite directions, to remote and distant seas, are highlands in the sense intended by the treaty, whether you compare them with the level of the seas to which the waters flow, or the more immediate intervening lands through which they seek their passage. But it is nevertheless still further true, that even our own government has seemed recently to entertain some doubts of the existence of these Highlands in the direction of a due North line from the Monument. It was believed, therefore, to be exceedingly important to set them right on this point, and to test the truth or falsehood of the statements of the British authorities by an actual reconnoissance of the region in dispute.

The exploring line had, on former occasions, in the excursions of the Commissioners, individually in the forest, in pursuing their own business, been seen and examined in various places, between the monument and the point where it crosses the river St. John; and therefore it did not seem to be necessary to do much on that line, unless it could be accurately run, so that no future survey would show any error in it. The State had not the proper instruments to run the true meridian or due north line, and it was uncertained that they could not be ascertained and tested, as to their accuracy, in time to do any thing before the weather would prevent the survey this season.

It was concluded to make the chief explorations and surveys to the northward of the River St. John, and to, and about the Northwest Angle of Nova Scotia, as described in the treaty of 1783, and thence westwardly on the high lands which divide the rivers emptying themselves into the river St. Lawrence from those which fall into the Atlantic Ocean; and when the weather should prevent operations in that quarter, to examine the line south to the monument. Such instruments as were necessary for taking altitudes and levels, for such surveys as were necessary to be made this season, could be procured without great delay.

In pursuance of these views, and of the instructions of the Governor, whose duty was made by the Resolves to cause them to be carried into effect, arrangements were made for procuring the necessary instruments, provisions and men; for the exploration and survey this season. When they were procured, most of the men went with the provisions up the Penobscot and Sebois Rivers, from where they carried over into the Aroostook River and descending it to the Little Machias River. Two of the Commissioners and Captain Parrett, the Surveyor, went by the way of the Aroostook River, and the other Commissioner by the way of Moose Head Lake and the Penobscot and Allagash Rivers. From the Aroostook River one Commissioner and seven of the men went by the way of the Little Machias and Fish Rivers, and one Commissioner and the Surveyor ascended the Aroostook, all intending to meet at the mouth of the Grand River, the first river falling into the River St John from the north and westward of the exploring line, and twelve or thirteen miles from it.

The party which arrived first was to ascend the Grand River, without delay, and the others were to follow in succession as they arrived. The several parties arrived at different times. The first one ascended Grand river, leaving marks and directions at various places, by the river, at the Portages and on the line, advising the others of the best mode of following. The Commissioners, Surveyor and laborers, with three Indians, in all fifteen, arrived at the highlands near Metis river, a river emptying into the river St Lawrence. The whole were there divided into three parties. One party explored the highlands and streams in various directions, another party explored and surveyed westwardly on the highlands dividing the waters, &c., and the third party, under the direction of Wm P. Parrott, the Surveyor appointed by the Governor, took various observations to ascertain the longitude of the exploring line, and also to determine the magnetic variation, and made a vertical survey south on the line, to ascertain the elevation.

The land at the northern part of the exploring line, and the region round about it, is found to be sufficiently high to divide the rivers emptying themselves into the river St Lawrence from those which fall into the Atlantic Ocean. From the Metis, where it is intersected by the exploring line (called by the Surveyors under the 5th article of the treaty of Ghent, Beaver Stream,) the land rises in about one mile south of it on the exploring line; by the Report and plan of W. P. Parrott, [illegible] communicated, more than fifty hundred feet. The land in this region is very high, in large swells, ridges and mountains. Between the Metis and Katawamkedgwic, or the Great Forks of the Ristigouche, is the highest land found on the base exploring line north of the monument. [illegible] was the [illegible] the Surveyor, under [illegible] County of Gloucester [illegible] Key [illegible] elevation of the Surveyor, as it appears in his report and profile, is five hundred and thirty-one feet above the level of the [illegible] Great Forks [illegible] the line crosses it, and in a distance of about fourteen and a half miles. Within about one mile south from the Metis; on the exploring line, the land rises to an elevation of three hundred and thirty feet above its level, and this is the spot where the rivers are divided, and where the Northwest Angle of Nova Scotia is to be found. The line south of the Katawamkedgwic, or Great Forks, to the river Ristigouche, passes most of the way, over high, broken and mountainous ridges, a little more depressed than the north of Katawamkedgwic, and the depression increases as the Ristigouche is approached.

South of the river Ristigouche, and between it and the streams emptying into the river St John, is Sugar Mountain, or more properly Sugar Mountain Ridge the line passes over the summit of it, it is a large swell, and a tract of fine land, free from stones, and covered with a heavy growth of birch and rock maple, with a little mixture of fir and spruce. It is less elevated than the land before described to the north of the Ristigouche, and the Katawamkedgwic, to the river Metis. According to the principal British Surveyor under the fifth article of the treaty of Ghent, in 1817, Col. Bouchette, Survey, vertical section, and profile of the country from the monument ninety miles north, Sugar Mountain is shown to be the highest land upon or near the line, in that distance from the monument; which is undoubtedly the fact. They also exhibit a continued rise in the base of the whole country, as are indicated by the level of the streams, and the land over which the line passes, to the waters of the Restigouche. It shows the Meduxkeag to be higher than the monument; and the Presq'Isle, the DeChute, Aroostook, St. John, and Grand Rivers, all rising successively one higher than the other above the level of the sea; and the Wagansis, at the termination of the ninety-nine miles, is higher above the level of the sea than any river south of it. A copy of Col. Bouchette's survey and profile, is for the purpose of illustration annexed to our map.

William F. Odell, the British Surveyor of the continuation of the exploring line from Sugar Mountain north, in 1818, says, "the general face of the country may be considered as increasing moderately in elevation northward from the Ristigouche." It does so, as has been before shown. The levels of the rivers above the sea also increase. As far as the level of the Ristigouche and Katawamkedgwic can be ascertained from comparative velocity, depth and width of the streams, formation of the bottom and sides, it appears, that the Katawamkedgwic is as high, and probably higher, from the level of the sea, than the Ristigouche or Wagansis, where the line crosses them. Admitting the different streams to be of the same height above the level of the sea, the Metis, or Beaver Pond, is five hundred and thirty one feet higher a base line from which drawn South will show a general inclined plane descending from thence to the monument at the source of the river St. Croix, and that the general elevation of the highlands will be between two and three thousand feet, also, above the level of the Sea. Here is the place where the treaty of 1783 describes the North west angle of Nova Scotia to be

[Conclusion to-morrow.]

Maternal Duties. There is no situation in life which involves a more solemn responsibility than does that which is occupied by the female head of a family. To her is committed the important trust of forming a character which must exert an influence, either good or bad, upon the community in which it shall act: and to her is committed the important trust, of moulding, and giving direction to, an immortal soul. And yet how many there are, who occupy this important station, who have no correct estimation of the duties devolving upon them. Could the past be permitted to speak, how solemn would be the lessons which it would utter in the ears of mothers! How many members of the human family who have become honorable members of society, and bright and shining examples of moral worth, owe their honorable distinctions to the judicious care, and excellent precepts of a pious and exemplary mother; and now many a miserable vagabond and outcast from honorable society; how many a tenant of our prisons and penetentiaries; how many a culprit, as he stands arraigned before a legal tribunal, how many a wretch as he stands ready to expiate, on the gallows, some dreadful crime, might point to a distracted and heart broken mother, and upbraid her as being the author of his present degredation, when perhaps her only fault was a too great indulgence of his youthful propensities. She was too tender, perhaps, to chastise him for his childish disobedience, and in consequence of her foolish indulgence, and improperly manifested tenderness, she is at last doomed to see her son brought to a miserable and disgraceful end.

Perhaps there is no situation in life so difficult as is that occupied by a mother. Her temptations are very great. In order to discharge her duties in a becoming manner, she is often obliged to do violence to her feelings, both of pride and love. Should she be the mother of a sprightly child, nothing could delight her more than to witness the early display of its childish wit; and should its juvenile essays be such as morality and religion could not sanction, pride and love both plead most earnestly with her to spare the correction. And oh, how frequently is it spared, and what bitter food does it furnish for future repentance! How often does a mother thus smile upon the first step towards the irretrievable moral degradation of her child!

GENUINE BUFFALO OIL.

THE HAIR! THE HAIR! THE HAIR!

The greatest ornament to the human body is a splendid head of hair. It has recently been discovered that the genuine Buffalo's Oil is a sovereign remedy for baldness, prevents the hair from coming off, promotes the growth, continues the luxuriance, and improves the beauty. It is far superior to any other animal or vegetable oil, and in case of fever, where the hair becomes dry and begins to fall off, there is no application more effectual in restoring its beauty and rendering it in a healthy state.

It is put up at a low price: (37 1-2 cents) that all classes can have access to it. None genuine unless put up in flat bottles, with HAIR OIL impressed in the glass. Also, to prevent imposition, it will be signed by the Proprietor, Wm. Brown, 431 Washington, corner of Eliot-st. Boston.

[illegible] Bangor, in and for the County of Penobscot, on the first Tuesday of January, 1839.

RESPECTFULLY represent, Ard Godfrey, John Johnson, Nicholas Johnson, Jr. of Orono, in said County of Hampden in said County of Penobscot: That they were seized in common and undivided with Ard Godfrey, John R. Godfrey and Temple Emery, all of said Orono, with John Bennoch of said Orono, and William Emerson of Bangor, of a piece or parcel of land on the southerly side of the Stillwater River, in Stillwater Village in said Orono, called the "Mill-brow", bounded as follows, viz: beginning at a small pine and stones on the bank of the Stillwater River or Pond, thence running west 8° south 9 rods to a stake and stones; thence south 8° east 19 rods; thence east 8° north 9 rods to a ledge of rocks; thence up said stream to the first mentioned bounds; That the aforesaid parties deeming it for their mutual interest and benefit to hold and occupy said premises in severalty, by the 13th day of May AD 1834 entered into certain covenants to the end and purpose that a division and partition of said common premises should be made by the award and determination of Edward Kimball, William Ramsdell and Merrick Emerson and said parties covenanted that said Kimball, Ramsdell and Emerson should set off the part or portion of said Bennoch and Emerson as one part of said Godfrey, Godfrey and Emery as one part and Gordon and Johnson as one part, and the said parties covenanted to give deeds of quit claim, each to the others respectively, of such portions of said premises as should be awarded and set off, as aforesaid, to the others.

And said Kimball, Ramsdell and M. Emerson, afterwards and on the 16th day of May AD. 1834 viewed and examined the premises, and made a division and partition thereof, and set off to the parties aforesaid, their portions of said estate in severalty and their award and determination was made in writing and under their seals. To the said Bennoch and Emerson they awarded and set off a portion of the premises in pursuance of said covenants as will appear by the same and their award which are recorded in the Penobscot Registry of Deeds, vol. 45, page 450; reference to which is had for a particular description. To the said Godfrey, Godfrey and Emery they awarded and set off a portion of the premises in pursuance of said covenants, as will appear by the same and the award and set off, recorded as aforesaid to which reference is made. To the said Gordon & Johnson they awarded and set off a portion of the premises as follows, viz: "beginning at the northeast corner of a two story house owned by William Hammatt, and running thence south 8° east 78 feet to the original corner of the Mill-brow; thence north 84° east to a stake 76 feet; thence parallel with the first mentioned line 81 feet to a street laid out by us from Mill street across said Mill-brow to the Stillwater canal; thence by said street to the bound first mentioned." They also awarded to said Gordon & Johnson, a certain compensation to be paid by John Bennoch, Esq. and the right of passing and repassing over said Mill-brow, as will appear by said award.

Now your petitioners aver, that they are and have been ready and willing to make, execute and deliver to said Godfrey, Godfrey & Emery, a deed of quit claim of said parts and proportions awarded and set off to them as aforesaid, and that they, your petitioners, have in all respects kept and performed the covenants by them entered into as aforesaid. They also stand ready to perform their covenants to said Bennoch & Emerson.

Your petitioners further represent, that said John R. Godfrey & Temple Emery have been prevented by death from making, executing and delivering to your petitioners a deed or deeds of quit claim of the proportion of said Mill-brow, set off and awarded to said petitioners as aforesaid.

Wherefore your petitioners pray that Ard Godfrey of said Orono, Executor of the last Will and Testament of John R. Godfrey, and Diana G. Emery, Administratrix of the goods and estate which were of said Temple Emery, may be licensed and empowered by the Court, to make and execute such conveyance or conveyances to your petitioners, as said covenanters would by their said covenants and the aforesaid proceedings be obliged to make were they living, and to do such other thing or things in the premises as this Court is authorized by law to direct, and shall seem meet and proper. And as in duty bound will ever pray.

To the Hon. [illegible] of Common Pleas, [illegible] Bangor and for the County of Penobscot, on the first Tuesday of January, 1839.

RESPECTFULLY represent John Bennoch of Orono, in said County, and William Emerson of Bangor, in said County, Esquires, That they were seized in common and undivided with Ard Godfrey, John R. Godfrey and Temple Emery, Alexander Gordon and Charles Johnson, all of said Orono, of a certain piece or parcel of land in Stillwater Village, and on the southerly side of the Stillwater River, called the "Mill-brow", bounded as follows, viz: Beginning at a small pine and stones on the bank of the Stillwater River or Pond, thence running west 8 degrees south, 9 rods to a stake and stones; thence south 8 degrees east, 19 rods; thence east 8 deg. north, 9 rods to a ledge of rocks; thence up the stream to the first mentioned bounds; That said parties, to wit: said Bennoch and Emerson of one part, said Godfrey, Godfrey and Emery of one part, and said Gordon and Johnson of one part, on the 13th day of May AD. 1834, deeming it for their mutual interest and benefit to hold and occupy said premises in severalty, entered into certain covenants and agreements to have a division and partition of said premises made by Edward Kimball, William Ramsdell and Merrick Emerson, said Bennoch and Emerson to have one part, said Godfrey, Godfrey and Emery to have one part, said Gordon and Johnson to have one part, and each parties covenanted to give deeds of quit claim to the others respectively, of such part of the said premises as should be set off and awarded to the others by said Kimball, Ramsdell and Emerson, and said Kimball, Ramsdell and Emerson afterwards and on the 16th day of May 1834 viewed and examined the premises, and made a division and partition thereof, and set off to the parties aforesaid their portions of said estate in severalty, and their award and determination was made in writing and under their seals. To the said Bennoch and Emerson they awarded and set off a part of the premises described as follows, viz: "beginning at a stake near said canal", (meaning the Stillwater canal) "about ninety feet northerly from the street across the Mill brow and running thence north 84° east 68 feet to Henry Sleeper's lot; thence south 8° east 94 feet to said street; thence north 82° east 71½ feet by said street to a stake; thence on a straight line to the bounds first mentioned;" Also all the land belonging to said Mill brow, lying between the said land and the Stillwater river or mill pond, which is to be the part and proportion of said Bennoch and Emerson of one half of the premises." And said Kimball, Ramsdell and Emerson also awarded to said parties certain rights of passing and repassing on said Mill-brow, for a particular acquaintance with which reference is made to said covenants and award, recorded in the Penobscot Registry of Deeds, vol. 45, page 450, and a certain part and proportion of the aforesaid "Mill-brow" premises were set off and awarded to said Godfrey, Godfrey and Emery; and also a certain part and proportion thereof to said Gordon and Johnson, for a further knowledge of which parts and proportions thus set off and awarded and a description thereof reference is had to the said covenants and award, recorded as aforesaid.

Now your petitioners aver, that they are and ever have been ready and willing to make, execute and deliver to said Godfrey, Godfrey and Emery, a deed of quit claim of said part and proportion to them awarded as aforesaid, and that they have executed for them such a deed, and have in all respects kept and performed the covenants by them entered into as aforesaid. They also stand ready to perform their covenants to said Gordon and Johnson.

Your petitioners further represent that said John R. Godfrey and said Temple Emery have been prevented by death from making, executing and delivering to your petitioners a deed or deeds of quit claim of the proportion of said Mill-brow set off and awarded to them as aforesaid.

Wherefore your petitioners pray this Hon. Court, That Ard Godfrey of said Orono, Executor of the last will and testament of said John R. Godfrey and Diana G. Emery, Administratrix of the goods and estate which were of said Temple Emery, may, after due notice to all persons interested, be licensed and empowered to make and execute such conveyance or conveyances to your petitioners as said covenanters would, by their said covenants and the aforesaid proceedings be obliged to make were they living, at the time of the performing by your petitioners, of the covenants on their part; and to do such other things as this Court is authorized by law to direct and as shall seem meet in the premises and as in duty bound will ever pray.

For self and WILLIAM EMERSON,
JOHN BENNOCH

Orono, Dec. 20 1838.
